CAMPUS UPDATE

Science gathering for young people

Youngsters interested in science and technology should not miss an inspirational conference to be held this week.

The Seventh Science and Technology Conference for Youths will take place from Wednesday to Friday at the Bangkok International Trade and Exhibition Centre where interesting research projects conducted by youths will be presented to the public.

The projects were in the science, mathematics and technology fields.

There will be exhibitions featuring Thai researchers' paths. Researchers and experts will hold discussions on steps to become scientists, how to deal with nature and the truth or rumours about the end of the world.

Experts will lecture visitors on necessary life skills for students in the 21st century and how to look after gifted children. Tips for writing scientific articles will be given. Visitors can join a math and science rally and watch a science game show.

Entry to the conference will be free of charge.
